NO. 91

IN MEMORIAM.

Dead, at her home in Hustonville, Ky., Dec. 23, at 2 o'clock, A. M., Miss Bettie Reid, daughter of Wm. Reid. The deceased was 31 years of age Nov. 11, 1888. The disease of which she died was typhoid pneumonia. All was done for her recovery that medical wisdom and loving ministries could devise.

When death removes from our presence those whom we have loved long and well, the heart at once seeks some proper method by which to express the deep sense of its loss and to inscribe upon enduring tablets the priceless worthiness of one whom we mourn and one whose memory we would enshrine in our affections.

At an early age Miss Bettie Reid became a member of the Christian Church. Her education was completed in the College at Hustonville under the administration of Miss Hannah Burgin, after which she prosecuted her favorite study of music and became a very successful teacher of the same, which she continued until taken ill by the disease of which she died. Her tender regard for her father and great desire to contribute to his happiness, was the constant anxiety of her heart. Also her love and devotion to her two brothers was ardent and ceaseless, as also to her sister-in-law and dear little Anna. These all lived in her heart. And right royally did they reciprocate her love.

There was but little affinity in her nature for the serious pleasures of social hilarity, but she sought rather quiet and sequestered retirement, and companionship with those whose happiness was not dependent upon the youthful frivolities of corrupt society. Her life was pure; her heart was generous; yet she was the very soul of humor. She was the very embodiment of devotion to her friends and sought only companionship with such as by deeds of kindness won her esteem. Pure, generous, noble and true—in the midst of life—the priceless treasure of her father's fondest love, as well as the idol of her two brothers' tenderest care, she suddenly was called away from earthly attachments and cares to join the waiting on the eternal shore, where a sainted mother and kindred hosts, ere this, have given to her a glad welcome to their heavenly home.

"Dearest sister, thou hast left us,
Here thy loss we deeply feel,
Yet to God who has heretofore,
He can all our sorrows heal.
Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the day of life has fled,
Then in Heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no fare well tear is shed."

W. L. W.

"BOUND FOR THE GALLOWS.—We attended church the other evening in company with Hank Rifer's oldest girl, Sarah. When the contribution box was passed we intended to climb in a quarter, but got hold of a dollar by accident. After the services we went to Deacon Jaggars, who runs the box, and requested seventy-five cents rebate. He refused to make it, saying that the Lord never allowed discounts or rebates. The deacon being this sort of a man, the Kicker does not hesitate to record the fact that he broke jail at Akron, O., twelve years ago and is still wanted in that State for bigamy. We have been keeping still on him because we were trotting Sarah about, and because the deacon claimed that he was doing work for the Lord in this locality. We have given Sarah the shrike, and we shall now stand the deacon out to public view in a way which will make him anxious to move before Christmas."

"TO KEEP FRESH MEAT.—In the winter season, says the Germantown Telegraph, it is often desirable to keep pieces of fresh meat, especially pork, spare ribs, etc., as long as possible. Without a refrigerator or ice-house it may be accomplished very satisfactorily by allowing the meat to freeze hard and then packing tightly in a barrel with snow, when it can be obtained, and placing the barrel in a cool place. In this way meat can often be kept for months, and so lengthen out the period of home-made fresh meat. Care must be exercised and close watch kept when the snow begins to thaw that the meat does not get uncovered, as it will in a little time become tainted."

"The villain who carries an umbrella under his arm on the sidewalk," said a victim who had just been poked in the eye, "ought to have it rammed down his throat and opened inside of him."

A Piece of Her Mind.

A lady correspondent has this to say: "I want to give a piece of my mind to a certain class who object to advertising, when it costs them anything—this won't cost them a cent. I suffered a living death for nearly two years with headaches, backache, in pain standing or walking, was being literally dragged out of existence, my misery increased by drugging. At last, in despair, I commenced the use of an advertised medicine, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and it restored me to the blessedness of sound health. I honor the physician who, when he knows he can cure, has the moral courage to advertise the fact. The medicine mentioned is guaranteed to cure those delicate diseases peculiar to females. Read printed guarantee on bottle wrapper."

For all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, take Dr. Pierce's Pills. One a dose.

More About Horses.

Milt Young, proprietor of the Magnolia Stud, has cabled an offer of $10,000 to England for the horse Ossory.

Ossory, the celebrated English horse reported to be sold to an American for $85,000, will probably remain in England, as all inquiry made by papers interested in such matters fails to find the purchaser. The Californians are struck on the Australian horses, since the importation of Sir Modred and Darebin, and are negotiating for Connation, another Australian celebrity; but the price asked—$100,000—has dampened the project just a "little."

The writer thinks one of the best bargains at the recent Lexington sales, was secured by the purchaser of the 3-year-old Alexandria. He was a great disappointment this year to his owner, owing to his continued growth. But look out for his performances in '89. He is doing growing now and is a grand specimen of the best type of thoroughbreds.

It is reported, but not yet confirmed, that Mr. Haggin has bought Proctor Knott for $30,000. If to win the Derby with, we do not think he has a sure thing by any means. There are many good ones yet in the Derby.

The Futurity Stakes, Coney Island, in '89, will be worth $75,000 and in '90 will be worth $100,000. This is one reason why buyers can pay handsome prices for promising young thoroughbreds.

Cincinnati is organizing a new race course to eclipse everything of the kind in the West. The old Buckeye track will compose a part of it.

A. J. Cassart and others are arranging for a new course at Elizabeth, N. Y., on a grand scale, said to be more expensively and excellently furnished and equipped than any course in the U. S. So the interest grows.

The yearlings by Blue Eyes brought good prices at Lexington and were uniformly an excellent and fine lot.

Clay & Ferguson, Lexington, have lost their imported horse, Zorillo, and James R. Clay has bought the promising young sire, Vocalie, by Virgil, dam by Australian.

Mr. Ten Brock took Lecompte, Lexington, Prior and Prior to England to race in 1886 because he could get nothing to start against them in America. Lecompte and Prior both died before winning there, but with Prior and Starke (the latter he bought) he won several good stakes. He recently said to a breeder and sportsman that of all horses he had ever seen in England he thinks Ormade the best, and the French-bred Glad-tiear the next best.

Parties who think they know affluence that the immense sum of $85,000 would not induce the Duke of Westminster to part with Ormade.

School Patrons, Attention!

(To the Editor of the Interior Journal.) Please allow me to reach the patrons and friends of the public school through your generosity. First, you have a site and building of which any town or city might justly be proud. Second, you have trustees who are men of much public spirit; men who would rather see the public interest advanced than their own preferment. Third, you have a district composed of children, almost without exception, who are bright and capable. Fourth, your teacher has no higher motives than those that would tend to the advancement of popular education. But do you know that even with the regular attendance you have given him with your children; with the even and genuine courtesy you have shown him; with the pleasant greetings received by him on all occasions, yet there is one thing essentially needed, that is usually neglected in public schools, especially in the towns, viz. the visitation by yourselves to the school during recitation hours. Could you but realize that, when one's whole interest is centered in the work of teaching, trying to impress upon the minds of your children the importance of study and moral duty; the responsibility that will soon devolve upon them and the places of honor and profit they are very soon to fill, I am sure that your presence would fill an aching void in the public schools, thereby stimulating to greater action not only the teacher in whom you have reposed such confidence, but of the children as well. There is nothing that will have a tendency to excite ambition more than a father's or mother's presence at school, to give a word of cheer, or it may be of kind criticism in time of need.

So, wishing parents, friends and pupils a merry Christmas, and hoping that when the holidays shall have ended, we may all return to our respective duties full of hope and determination to do our whole duties faithfully and well;

Yours truly, W. F. McCLARY.

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—James Quinn put a bullet into a man's cheek at Livingston Friday night. Suppose the trees down there are already too full to hold any more lead.

—Peyton Parrott, that lasting business man, representing R. K. Wearen, of your place, was in this and Laurel counties last week. He gets up more business to the square inch than any man of his size that we know of.

—Henry Laine, the little negro who tried his pop at Put Bark two weeks ago, was given $25 and ten days Saturday for pistol toting. He now rests within Jailer Arnold's stronghold, where dozens of others who carry pistols should be.

—Speaking of a lively Christmas. If there is any noise or life in jugs, kegs, canteens, etc., from the number seen daily we would suppose that things would be whooped up in some parts of the mountains during the next few days. One fellow was seen with five jugs swinging by a rope through their handles over his neck trudging southward Saturday.

—Mit Miller is at home from Kirksville school. W. M. Weber has returned to Knoxville, James Stevens has gone to Berea for the holidays. Jack Fish and Tom Francisco, of Ginn Sulphur, were visiting this place Sunday. Mrs. M. C. Bragg is visiting her daughter, Mrs. R. E. Thompson, near Lancaster. J. W. Pollard and family started for Georgia last night.

—News has just reached here of a very ugly case of incendiaryism and attempted murder near McKee, Jackson county, Friday night. A large barn and other outbuildings belonging to Judge Forbes, a well-to-do and influential farmer, were burned, with three valuable horses and a good quantity of corn, wheat, oats and hay. On awaking the judge started to the fire to save the horses. Before reaching it he was dazed upon, a number of balls passing near his head. He rushed back into the house, when a servant girl volunteered her services to go out and discover the identity of the firebrands and would-be assassins. They passed out of the house on the opposite side from the fire and crept around and up to close proximity to where two of the incendiaries were standing. After recognizing them they returned to the house the way they came. Saturday warrants were sworn out and two, whose names we have failed to learn, were arrested and jailed at McKee. The supposed cause of the dirty work is that some parties who had some trouble in court a short time since asked Judge Forbes to go on their bonds, and upon his refusal they remarked that the next time he was asked for such he would not be financially able to comply. The parties now in jail are said to be concerned with those who had given out threats against Judge Forbes.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could only live a short time; she weighed less than 70 pounds. On a piece of wrapper paper she read Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, ruddy, plump, weighing 120 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful discovery free at A. R. Penny's drugstore.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable consumptive. Begun taking Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, and am now on my feet. It is the finest medicine ever made." Jesse Middlewast, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption I would have died of Lung Trouble. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at A. R. Penny's drugstore.

HUSTONVILLE.

—G. D. Weatherford's side came off Saturday. Property is said to have brought unusually high prices.

—The Cantata and supper Friday night were largely attended and hugely enjoyed. The musical portion of the performance is pronounced by judges to have been a marked success.

—Sam Brown is still improving. Mrs. Maria Langley, an English lady of the Wright family was found dead in her bed Tuesday morning at Winter Wright's, her nephew. She was quite old and childless and is said to have left a large estate invested in banks.

—Mr. Rodney Jones, of Harrodsburg, and Doc Carpenter and Miss Tolly Williams, of Stanford, were at the Cantata. Miss Maud Miles, of Harrodsburg, and Charles Clark, of Booneville, are with Miss Lou Hocker. Mrs. Wm. Moreland and Miss Susie Sandidge, of Danville, are at Mr. Sam Reid's.

—We would not be guilty of adulation, but we feel that in the sad misfortune sustained by the editor of this paper a few days since, we have to bewail a public calamity of no ordinary magnitude. His enforced retirement from his usual routine of business will create a vacuum which will be deeply felt and cannot be adequately filled. It is not my purpose to write his eulogy. The young men of the office are competent and emulous, and will exert themselves to bear with honor the well-won banner of the Interior Journal, on whose radiant folds has never been scribbled the craven confession, "Failure." Let the friends of the paper rally around it now and show by their zeal and activity in its behalf that it is still a power in the land; that its hold on the affections of the people cannot be easily broken; and their purpose to welcome its presiding genius back to his appropriate post with beaming faces and hearts overflowing with sincere congratulations.

W. P. WALTON.

The editor is getting along possibly as well as could be expected with the kind of fracture he suffers. The large bone of the hip is broken about half an inch from the hip socket, rendering it impossible to splint the limb or place it in plaster of Paris. The fracture is held in place by the force of will and sand bags, and while there are some moments of relaxation, he suffers the most intense pain, being unable to read or write or take any interest in anything only for short intervals. One of the worst features of the case is the patient's constitutional inability to take any of the ordinary opiates, so he is compelled to "grin and endure" his sufferings without the alleviating effects produced by them.

The editor has received scores of letters of sympathy from friends and the papers are deluging him with kind notices, all of which will be preserved till he gets in a better condition, when he can enjoy them. The following telegram was received yesterday evening:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 24.—W. P. WALTON:—I sincerely sympathize with you and hope your injury will not be as severe as reported.

JAMES B. MCCREARY.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Christmas, 1888, is upon us and whether the old year which we are about to bid adieu has brought us good or evil, she will soon sink into obscurity. To many of us, particularly the older class, she has speedily passed, the only recollection of her being a few business transactions, the gain of gold and the like, while to others the loss of dear friends will cause this year to be looked upon as one of calamity. To the young ones the year has seemed long, for a merry Christmas before them has for months been their absorbing thought, and consequently the days have slowly glided by till at last the haven is reached. To the still younger the year has been particularly long. They have looked forward to Christmas morning, when their stockings would be filled with what they have long wished and to day, the day of all days, they have that exquisite pleasure which none save those who go back to their childhood can appreciate. What a lovely, heavenly sight it is to see the little ones in their innocence, going through their stockings, their little eyes feasting on what Santa Claus has brought them and it does seem that his would be a heart of stone who would let a Christmas pass without that time-honored and to be pardoned pleasure of "hanging up the children's stockings."

The departing year to most of us has been prosperous and through God's goodness no malady has visited us. It is true that the heads of numerous families, men of prominence, men who have been looked upon as landmarks, have been taken from our midst, but should not we be thankful on this, Christ's anniversary, that they were spared so long? However great our afflictions may be, there is something to be thankful for, and we sincerely hope that many a prayer of thanks may go up this grand day to Him, "the giver of all good and perfect gifts." Let us not show our thankfulness by prayer alone, but let it be the duty of each of us to make some household happy. There are homes which would be brightened by the visitation of friends; there are homes made sad by the illness of dear ones, and there are homes made unhappy by poverty; so let us make it our personal obligation to do something to aid those afflicted households and our Christmas will be one of unbounded joy and well pleasing in the sight of God.

—The meeting at the Presbyterian church closed last Friday night. The services were conducted by Drs. Clelland and Randolph. Excepting Geo. O. Barnes, and possibly one other, they are the lightest fools we have ever known, and have the biggest hearts and largest brains. Now call this a paradox, if you like, and not an absurdity. They have become fools for Christ's sake; having unlearned much, they have learned much more; as fools they are wise above the world. As Rev. Randolph is the regular pastor here, and Dr. Clelland has been with us for a season and gone, it is of him particularly we wish to speak. There is not a brainier man in his Church in Kentucky, nor a broader man in grace. He began preaching at an early age, and soon his accomplishments attracted wide attention. Rapidly accumulating knowledge, the extent of his learning has broadened until the shore of wisdom was nearly reached, and as he neared the meridian of life, "the people called him great." At this point he was called to face the hardest problem of life—whether he would continue as he began, or whether he would consent to unlearn in order to learn; become a fool in order to be wise. Honest, bold, brave man, he met the question and settled it with courage that few have possessed. He resolved to have but one Teacher, and to learn all from Him. Knowing full well that the men who have determined to look only to God, and teach as they are Spirit-taught, are the men who are met by reproaches from the Church, and frowns from the chief priests, scribes and elders, this man determined to battle henceforth on this line. It was at this point popular opinion and criticism changed, and the wisecracks who erstwhile considered him a magnificent luminary, turned in search of other lights, and to-day they regard him as a rapidly descending star. The light has really lost none of its brilliancy, but appears dimmer to them because it has traveled on and left them in the gloom. With intellectual greatness undiminished, but rather illumined by the Spirit that guides his thoughts and directs and gladdens his life, he has attained an altitude that religious bigots cannot reach nor comprehend, bound by prejudice in spiritual obscurity, they have neither plummet to sound his depth, nor line to measure the compass of his horizon. For 50 years he has been laboring for God. For more than 70 years he has borne the honored name of his father; he will carry that name only a few years more, at best, and then leave it to the coming age without a blot. Yet to-day, with but few exceptions, he is virtually exiled from the pulpits of his church. The Sanhedrin have a law, and their statute must not be disturbed, even by Jehovah's word. But this good old man whose ability is not properly recognized or appreciated by the church, has borne his sore cross and gone patiently on climbing life's long hill. And now that the summit is passed and his duty bravely done, there are no regrets to call him back to his youth again. As he began the ascent, so he begins the descent—a little child, fit for the kingdom. He hears behind him the tramp of many whose hearts are aglow with the gospel, and he has sown, and on whose faces he has painted a smile. "Not many years are left to him, but brave, manly and true, he marches to the end. Time has weakened his form and left its mark upon his face, but grace has crowned him with a majesty that time can never touch or dim, and he is closing his journey in good pleasure and peace. The light of 70 years has thinned his hair and whitened it, but the setting sun of life has thrown a softened light about his head. In joy and gray hairs he descended the hill on the other side, and nears the foot of the slope with an easy, gentle step. With his face fixed steadfastly on the Lord, his features are brightened by the reflected light, and his countenance is serene and beautiful. He heard the melody of a low sweet lullaby when he came—departing he will hear the sweeter music of an ascending song.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

—At 11 o'clock yesterday, after an illness of seven months, of abscess of the lungs,

MR. JOSEPH HAMILTON DAVIES breathed his last, aged 62 years. Always an upright and good man, Mr. Davies' death will cause a gloom over all who knew him. Professed religion some 20 years ago, he had been a most devout member of the Presbyterian church; the church doors hardly ever being opened for services without him in the audience, but for the last year he has been denied that privilege, and although his body has been racked with pain, he has never let a Sunday pass without reading a chapter in the bible and uttering words of prayer. He was a most patient sufferer and never murmured during his long confinement. Never marrying, Mr. Davies spent most of life with his brother, Mr. T. T. Davies, who preceded him to the grave several years, since which time he has lived with his widow who has watched carefully and lovingly over him during his entire illness. His funeral will be preached at the Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock to-day, by Rev. Ben Helm, assisted by Rev. Morris Evans, afterward his remains will be laid to rest in Buffalo Spring Cemetery.

Words of Condolence.

—Died, of Bronchitis, at Stanford, on Wednesday, December 12, 1888, little Ballard O'Bryan, the bright little son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. O'Bryan. Though only a small portion of this life had been given him, three years and five months, he was a boy-king in the household of his parents. Even at his tender age he had begun to appreciate fully, and to return fondly every act of kindness and love bestowed upon him by father and mother. This made him doubly, trebly dear to them. The truth that death's hand is felt most keenly when put upon one we love fell heavily upon them. In this hour of their sad bereavement we extend to them our most heart-felt sympathy. We shall always cherish lovingly in memory's sacred place their dear little child, whose name is now registered among the angels in heaven. W. Lebanon, Ky., Dec. 21, 1888.

A Vassar girl sat on her best fellow's hat as they basked in the moonlight with classical chat, but she put in her thumb and pulled out her gum, and made it all right with a thrilling ynn, ynn.

This White Star Laundry, of Danville, Wood & Yeager, proprietors, is now in splendid working order and is turning out the cleanest as well as the best dressed linen that any laundry in the State can show. This is an enterprise that should be supported by the neighboring towns and we are in hopes that Stanford will head the list with a liberal patronage.

At the sale of Mr. Harrison Hocker's effects Saturday good prices were realized for the personal property, which consisted mostly of household and kitchen furniture. The heirs bought most of this, including the home place, which was bought by Miss Maggie Hocker for $2,000. The house and lot on Main street opposite Col. Welch's was bought by that gentleman for $500.

ANOTHER BREAKING HEART.—Eph Pennington, while coupling cars at Silver Creek, caught his hand between two drawheads, mashing off the front finger of his left hand and fearfully mashing two other fingers of the same hand. An L. & N. car was being coupled to a K. C. car, the drawheads of which were of different sizes, caused Mr. Pennington to suffer this painful accident.

WILLIAM TROTTER, the meanest negro in the world is at it again and was lodged in jail Saturday night, the offense this time being shooting at with intent to kill Amanda Collier, a negro woman. He was tried before Judge Carson yesterday and held in $100 bond to circuit court, failing to give this he will be heard of no more till his trial, which is several months off. This is a good riddance.

WILSON RICE.—Ed Johnson and Charlie Armstrong, of this place, and John Embury, of Lancaster, all negroes, had gone into the whisky business and arranged plans to supply the two towns with "red liquor" when Deputy U. S. Marshal Newland got wind of the scheme and landed them all in jail Saturday night, to remain till after the holidays, when they will be taken to Louisville for trial.

Mrs. S. J. LARRY very handsomely entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hocker Friday night. A number of Mrs. Embury's immediate friends and relatives were present and a most delightful evening was spent. An elegant supper, and no one better knows how to prepare a supper, was one of the enjoyable features. Below is a list of those present: Mr. J. S. Hocker and wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Bush, Hon. G. A. Luckey and wife, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Givens, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rochester, Mr. James H. Bailey and wife, Mr. Arch McKinney and wife, Mr. Forester Reid and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McRoberts, Mr. J. T. Craig and wife, Mr. W. M. Bright and wife, Mrs. Mollie Hocker, Mrs. Bettie McKinney, Miss Annie Bates, Miss Belle Carpenter, Mrs. Len Shanks and family, Mr. S. H. Shanks and family, James H. Bangham, W. A. Tribble and Miss Dollie McRoberts.

CANDIES, oranges and nuts at wholesale and retail prices at Metcalf & Foster's.

The Banks and the postoffice being closed to-day will be about the only thing that will remind us that Christmas is upon us.

D. KLAS's auction will be continued through the holidays and those wanting goods at their own prices should stop in. D. Klass.

A good crowd was in town yesterday and the merchants were kept busy selling Christmas trinkets from early in the morning till late last night.

Mr. J. K. SMITH writes us from Highland that his house burned a few nights ago, destroying most of its contents, and that he intends to move to Lexington to live. He does not know how the fire originated, but does not believe it was the work of an incendiary. There was no insurance and his loss is about $800.

HENRY WILSON, the blind preacher, played Paris last week. The evil genius will make a reputation for himself it seems, however unenviable it may be. We would suggest to the Paris people that they read the newspapers a little more closely, believing they will fare better and not be taken in by such scoundrels as the fellow Wilson is.

In another column will be found a call made to the members of the Wide-Awake Society at Hustonville, who presented the Cantata, "Star of Bethlehem," at that place Friday night. In a manner which greatly pleased the large audience, asking them to favor Stanford with a rendition of it. We sincerely hope the call will be accepted, believing that a good audience will greet them.

MR. R. C. WARREN tells us that a good deal of business was disposed of at the Liberty circuit court and that the docket was pretty well channeled up. Mrs. Oscar Denham, who sued her husband for alimony, was given an allowance of $25 per month and Denham's property enjoined as a guarantee. The man Woolman who killed Tom Williams at an election some 20 years ago was cleared on the grounds of self defense.

Some four months ago Mr. J. J. McRoberts sent a picture of himself, Mrs. McRoberts and daughter, Miss Dollie, to a friend at Kennerly, Mo., and since has been rather surprised at not getting a letter acknowledging receipt of them. His suspense was relieved the other day by receiving the pictures and a letter enclosed from Mr. L. S. Jones, late of this State, stating that he found them out on the prairie in Kansas and recognizing Mr. McRoberts; he sent them all to him. The pictures were in good order, but it would be hard to guess how they got there.

WHEEL.—Passenger train No. 5, running between Louisville and Nashville, ran into passenger train No. 23, due here at 1:15 p. m., at Barstow Junction yesterday, literally tearing the coach to pieces, and fearfully hurting six or seven passengers. We were unable to hear further particulars, the wires being taken entirely up with train orders. Mrs. J. E. Mount, who was on the train with her two children, on their way to this place, telegraphed her father, Mr. J. M. McRoberts, Jr., that she was considerably bruised up and that her little boy was too badly mangled to be moved. A telegram from Danville to this paper says that Miss Kinnaird, of Louisville, was horribly hurt, but it was impossible to hear further what the other unfortunate ones were, as well as to learn what caused the wreck. No. 23 had not arrived nor could it be heard from as we went to press.

Pennington, sold at public auction at his farm on the Knoblick pike the following: 3 broad mares $25 to $30; milk cows $18 to $30; yearling colt $27; corn in crib $1.94; shots $3.90; wheat 65 cts. 15 acres containing the house tract was rented to Jesse Hocker, of McKimney, at $3.60 per acre.

PUBLIC SALE.

OF VALUABLE COAL AND TIMBER LANDS

ON

Wednesday, Feb. 6, 1889,

at 11 o'clock, A. M. at the town of PITTSBURGH, LAUREL CO. KY.

will be sold to the highest bidder, at public auction, about 400 acres of Coal and Timber Land. This is one of the most valuable tracts of a 1 the lands in this region, so celebrated for its coal and timber. The lands surrounding it are now being worked, and the product finds a fine market being on the line of the Knoxville Branch of the L. & N. railroad, and in direct connection with the city of Louisville where a large part of the output is disposed of. The lowest estimate made is 700 acres of solid coal of good workable thickness in this tract with plenty of fine timber for mining purposes. Part of this land is now being worked and produces a coal of very superior quality which commands ready sale and good returns.

This sale offers a fine opportunity to parties looking out for investment for the future or desiring to develop the land at once.

Pittsburgh is immediately on the line of the Knoxville Branch of the L. & N. R. R. and about midway between Louisville and Knoxville, and has for many years been an important coal-producing district.

Parties desiring to inspect the land before day of sale can do so by applying either to Geo. Givens or Wm. McNell, at Pittsburgh.

Sale positive and made to close a partnership.

TERMS.—One-third cash in hand, balance in equal payments of 12 and 16 months from day of sale. Purchaser to execute bonds with good security, bearing 6 percent interest from day of sale; then also retained for deferred payments.

S. V. ROWLAND, GEO. GIVENS, C. S. NIELD.
